

#7 GOVERNING INTERNATIONAL ADVOCACY NGOS

L.DAVID BROWN (HARVARD UNIVERSITY, CAMBRIDGE, USA) ALNOOR EBRAHIM (HARVARD BUSINESS SCHOOL, BOSTON, USA) SRILATHA BATLIWALA (ASSOCIATION FOR WOMEN S RIGHTS IN DEVELOPMENT (AWID), BANGALORE, INDIA)

Document; comparative analysis, 2011

Topic for advocacy Advocacy

http://www.hbs.edu/faculty/Publication%20Files/Governing%20International%20Advocacy%20NGOs%20WD_9647027d-a173-465d-ab43-0f53ca5ecf9c.pdf

Description of the good example

The document presents a comparative analysis of the cases of ten IANGOs (International Advocacy Non for profit Governing Organisations) that operate in diverse advocacy contexts, including development, environment, governance, human rights, and constituent support. The document examines the patterns of governance, organizational architecture, and advocacy effectiveness across the cases and generates six propositions that link governance, architecture, accountability, legitimacy, and effectiveness for such organizations.

Target - Who can best use this example or document?

Policy makers, intergovernmental organisations, transnational corporations, national governments, corporations, non-for profit organizations.

All information in this entry is sourced from the link above and contact mentioned in the document.*

Highlights and outcomes

Why could it be useful for your organisation and advocacy?

The document helps to understand more about how IANGOs govern themselves, and advocate effectively, which is important to enhancing global governance and problem-solving. It's knowledge-sharing, innovative and it supports advocacy at all levels.

Learning points - What can we learn from it?

Find out more about the structure of decision-making in organisations and associations, as well as how the leaders of IANGOs learn to manage their own governance challenges and develop the necessary architectures for effective multi-level advocacy. This document is transferable to different organisations.

Further information

L.David Brown (Harvard University, Cambridge, USA) Alnoor Ebrahim (Harvard Business School, Boston, USA) Srilatha Batliwala (Association for Women s Rights in Development (AWID), Bangalore, India)